

Shayna Seymour, Emmy winning journalist, is co-anchor of WCVB's iconic nightly newsmagazine, Chronicle. She was previously a reporter, producer and co-anchor of WCVB's weekend EyeOpener newscast and joined WCVB in 2006. You can catch Shayna filling in on the anchor desk of the weekday evening newscasts as well.

Shayna has been nominated for several local Emmy Awards and was awarded an Emmy in 2021, 2020, and 2019 in the Best Program-Host/Moderator/Correspondent category for her work on Chronicle. In addition, she won Emmy's in 2021, 2018, and 2015 as co-host of WCVB's telecast of the annual "Holiday Lights" event, Boston's official tree lighting. As co-anchor of Chronicle, Shayna reports on a wide range of human interest, lifestyle, entertainment and arts stories throughout New England and beyond. She has had the opportunity to interview many celebrities including Oprah Winfrey, Ellen DeGeneres and Ginger Zee. Shayna was also the host of "Boston Idol," a special Chronicle episode that featured several local American Idol hopefuls when the iconic show made its debut on ABC.

In an effort to continuously serve the community, Shayna has emceed many events for local community and charitable organizations. She has served as emcee for the annual Boston MLK Breakfast, the nation's longest-running and Boston's premiere event dedicated to honoring the legacy of Dr. King. In addition, she has served as a moderator at the annual Massachusetts Conference for Women, the largest women's conference and leadership forum in the state. Other organizations near and dear to Shayna's heart include The Home For Little Wanderers and Dress for Success, to name a few.

Prior to joining WCVB, Shayna was anchor of the morning and noon newscasts as well as general assignment reporter at WGGB-TV, Springfield. While at this ABC affiliate, Shayna honed her reporting skills covering breaking news events, education and health issues. Shayna co-hosted the MDA Jerry Lewis Telethon for WGGB.

Shayna launched her broadcast career at WSTM-TV in Syracuse, NY as an intern. Prior to that, she was employed in the corporate world.

A native of Amherst, Massachusetts, Shayna received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology from Spelman College and Master of Science degree in Broadcast Journalism from Syracuse University. Shayna has been recognized as a "stylish Bostonian" by the Boston Globe, Boston Common Magazine and the Improper Bostonian, even gracing the cover of the latter. She currently resides outside of Boston with her husband and two children.